Restaurant Leaders INDXX Index (IMENU)

The Restaurant Leaders INDXX Index seeks to track the U.S. publicly traded leaders in the restaurant industry. Based upon industry research the index tilts about 70% towards Quick Service Restaurants (QSR). The index rebalances holdings quarterly and uses proprietary quantitative screens to remove 6 relatively underperforming stocks; thereby establishing leadership.

Index Methodology:

Stocks in the index must be pure play restaurant companies which are traded on a U.S. stock exchange, whose market capitalization is a minimum of $300 million, and whose stock has at least $1.5 million of daily trading volume. The methodology first weights the universe at 70% Quick Serve (QSR) and 30% Full Service (FSR). Next, two proprietary screens seek to optimize the allocation process by eliminating six underperforming companies and re-allocating the proceeds to the top five holdings with a maximum allocation of 4.9%. The result historically is that the QSR weighting has ranged from 68% to as high as 73% with the balance going to FSR. The allocation to growth companies was 66% and small to mid-size companies was about 75%.
